Nancy Wynne Tells of the Lieber and Thayer Teas. Many Attend Race Meet on Saturday at Normandy Farm—Main Line Women Help Hospital

DO YOU know Sunday was certainly a real day of rest after Saturday's Hill, who will be presented at a breakteas. I just had to give up going to the fast given by Mr. and Mrs. Dixon on Earle affair in Chestnut Hill and I am January 1. sorry; for I hear it was lovely and that

Really the Thayers' rooms looked like a conservatory and the Liebers' house was jammed with bouquet upon bou-It is a shame how many of those wonderful flowers have to die so soon, because no human house could possibly contain enough vases to hold them and besides they are usually made up to place about the room instead of in the

Mrs. Thayer looked just as pretty as Polly and Peggy and that's going some! She were a wonderful gown of black velvet and her hair was most artisti-cally arranged. Polly dimpled and smiled and was just as sweet as ever. She looked lovely in pale pink and blue

Mrs. Jack Thayer, Lois Cassatt that was, wore a soft champagne-colored crepe-de-chine dress and a large dark brown hat with a little fur round the edge. Lois had her baby with her and it was receiving quite as much attention as Polly at the moment I saw it. It was sitting up very straight in its purse's arms and looking awfully cute. It's a pleasure to see how happy so many of the war-brides look now that their husbands are home and they Vaux, Mrs. Alexander Brown, Mrs. are beginning to settle down. Lois Thomas McKean and Mr. Walter know.

All Mrs. Thayer's sisters and sistersin-law were receiving with her, with the exception of Mrs. Sydney Thayer who is in mourning for Emily's husband, Boulton Dixon, who was killed in night. Among their guests were Mr.

THE girls looked awfully sweet at the Lieber tea. Edith, who is quite dark, wore a white satin gown and georgette crepe frock, and Sarah Harrison was also in white. Sarah is fairer than Edith. She has rather light brown hair and dark eyes. They cer-tainly did look darling! Mrs. Lieber wore a beautiful gown of a peculiar shade of blue and silver brocade veiled turquoise blue, nor was it a darker blue, it was what you might call the on Saturday before the races at Normany samert I thought very smart I thought.
